A water pipe in the cellar froze and Mr. Dubuque put some gasoline on the pipe and then touched a match to it. The match went out and he put on more gasoline and struck another match. In an instant there was an explosion and the can which contained the gasoline burst, covering him with flames. When he rushed upstairs and his wife saw the trouble, she threw the coat over his head and extinguished the fire. He was so badly burned about the face it is feared he will be badly disfigured for life. His head and face were said to be swollen larger than a large water pail.

Circular of a Century Ago.

A Philadelphia firm of typefounders has issued the following circular calling attention to the importance of the development by the United States of domestic supplies of essential metals:

The present state of the commerce o the United States, arising out of the conduct of the belligerent powers, having shown our wants, and pointed out the necessity of calling to our aid such of the natural productions of the country as our knowledge and research might enable us to discover; with a view to this important object, we solicit your attention to the article of antimony, which is essential in the manufacture of printing types, and which has not hitherto been discovered in this country. Bismuth would also be a great acquisition, and profitable to the owner of the mine. As it is highly probable that articles, which abound in many parts of Europe, are not totally wanting in this extensive country, we carnestly request you to make the necessary inquiries in your neighborhood, and, should you discover anything which promises a favorable result, to transmit an account of it to us.

We are, respectfully yours, Binny & Ronaldson, Letter Founders.

The only comment to be made on this statement is that the date of the circular is Feb. 17, 1809, at which time the sole method of calling attention to the needs of the country in such matters was by personal circular and pamphlet; there was, for instance, no government clearing house of information with reference to minerals such as the United States geological survey of the department of a good building section?"-Baltimore the interior.

This circular was found by one of the reologists of the geological survey among ome of the papers of Thomas Jefferson. Both in tone and substance, this "prepar "dness" suggestion relating to the develspment of the country's natural resources s not essentially different from appeals made more than a century later.

Aside from the fascinations of trap shooting, one must consider the great benefit of the sport to women and young girls. As a strengthener of muscles and a steadier of nerves it can hardly be surpassed. It also causes women to lose all signs of timidity and makes them fully competent to take eare of themselves in all circumstances. -Exchange.

Niegara Falls Erosion.

Canada is rapidly gaining possession of the greater part of Niagara falls. The American falls now carry less than a twentieth of the entire flow. For 200 years or more the center of Horseshoe falls has been receding by erosion at the rate of about five feet a year. The edge of the American falls recedes much more slowly-only a few inches a year. As the Canadian falls drop back toward Lake Erie they receive a larger and larger volume of water.-Youth's Companion.
